Seafood Simmered Sardines with Celery

Ingredients (Serves 4)

8 sardines (about 20cm long)
1 celery stalk (100g)
8 tbsp soy sauce
1/4 cup / 50ml sake
4 tbsp mirin sweet cooking sake
1 small knob ginger
1 tbsp simmered sansho pepper

1 String the celery and chop it coarsely.
2 Peel the ginger, and chop it finely.
3 Put the soy sauce, sake and mirin in a pan, and bring it to a boil.
4 When it comes to a boil, lay the sardines side by side in the pan.
5 Put the ginger, celery, and sansho pepper on top, put a drop lid on, and simmer it for 10 to 15 minutes.
6 Baste the sardines while they cook so that they absorb the flavor of the seasoning.

Lake Motosu (Mt. Fuji viewing spot) information

00:01.57

Koshu
 Koshu is the former name for Yamanashi Prefecture. In feudal times, it was the base for the powerful Takeda warlords and many traditional crafts date back to that era. Koshu Inden is a way of decorating deerskin with designs in lacquer. Fine wash paper is used for calligraphy. And nishikigoi (varicolored carp) are often considered living artworks. Woodblock print artist David Bull visits the Koshu area to discover this world of natural beauty and artisan skill.

Lake Motosu (Mt. Fuji viewing spot)
 The famous view of Mt. Fuji (as printed on the back of Japan's 1,000 yen notes) can be observed from the hills on the northwest side of Lake Motosu. Follow the steep mountain trail from Koan-so for about 30 minutes.

Inden no Yamamoto
 This shop sells items made by the traditional Koshu Inden process, in which patterns in lacquer are applied onto tanned deerskin.
